

Senate Approves Poll Tax Issue

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate, in a burst of speed, approved Tuesday a proposed constitutional amendment to outlaw the poll tax as a requirement for voting in federal election.

The 77-16 vote, more than the required two-thirds majority, brought an abrupt end to a fight that had tied up the Senate for nearly two weeks.

Southern senators, usually united in opposition to civil rights measures, were split over the poll tax issue and did not undertake a full-scale filibuster to block action.

For 10 days, however, during which the Senate met for extra hours and virtually closed down its committee work, some of them had resisted preliminary motions with a barrage of lengthy speeches.

But they called a halt late Monday.

Goes To House

The proposed constitutional amendment, one of two civil rights measures urged by President Kennedy, now goes to the House.

If approved there, it will have to be ratified by three-fourths of the 50 states to become effective. Sen. Spessard L. Holland, D-Fla., was its chief sponsor in the Senate.

Two years ago the Senate approved the anti-poll tax amendment by a 72-16 vote as part of a package of three constitutional amendments, but the House took no action on it.

Only five states—Alabama, Arkansas, Mississippi, Texas and Virginia—still require voters to pay a poll tax in federal elections.

Before approving Holland's amendment, the Senate tabled and thus killed by a 59-34 vote a move by Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., to outlaw the poll tax as a requirement for voting in federal elections by legislation, rather than by constitutional amendment.

Holland's amendment first was substituted for a resolution that would make the former New York City dwelling of Alexander Hamilton a national monument.

This was done by voice vote, despite the objections Southerners originally had raised to calling up the monument bill as a vehicle for getting the anti-poll tax amendment before the Senate.

Senate leaders resorted to this round about procedure because Holland's constitutional amendment had become stymied in the Senate Judiciary Committee, headed by Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss.

Other state House and Senate leaders were not available for comment.

Gov. Lawrence, at his weekly news conference, also approved the court decision as "basically a good thing."

"Legislatures generally have not kept up with it (reapportionment) and there has been a lot of dissatisfaction as a result," he said.

Unlike legislative leaders, Lawrence did not doubt the court's authority to make such a ruling.

"Isn't that the old saw—that the law is what the Supreme Court says it is?" Lawrence asked. "So they have said this is the law and I assume there will be some action on it in many directions in many states."

At the same time, he recalled an anonymous remark: "Let them enforce it."

Want No War Over Berlin

Rusk, Gromyko Agree On Some Berlin Issues

GENEVA (AP)—U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk declared himself in agreement with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko on some points in the Berlin dispute Tuesday but the deadlock remained unbroken on basic issues.

Only five states—Alabama, Arkansas, Mississippi, Texas and Virginia—still require voters to pay a poll tax in federal elections.

One of the points of agreement, announced in a joint statement with Gromyko, was to keep talking. U.S. informants said a second point in that both share an understanding their governments want to avoid war over Berlin.

With leading members of the American delegation to the 17-nation disarmament conference, Rusk then boarded a plane for Washington to report to President Kennedy that the Berlin crisis is still dangerous but unlikely to break out into a shooting war in the foreseeable future. He was followed by British Foreign Secretary Lord Home.

Speed Work

Both Rusk and Lord Home said they would return to the conference any time their presence would speed its work. Their aides will continue the negotiations which may drag on for weeks or months.

After more than two weeks of intensive conversations on the sidelines of the conference, Rusk and Gromyko disclosed that they had failed to find a formula to solve the Berlin deadlock.

Their joint statement said, however, that their talks had been "useful and frank and some progress has been made in clarifying points of agreement and points of difference. They have agreed to resume contact in an appropriate way after reporting to their respective governments and after consultation with their allies."

To keep negotiations going, Rusk is expected to get in touch with Gromyko in about 10 days. After their joint statement, Rusk and Gromyko joined other ministers at the conference.

where both urged a speedy attack on the disarmament problem. With carefully qualified words each said he saw some merit in disarmament ideas submitted by the other.

Sour Note

Gromyko contributed a sour note to the day, however, in a speech broadcast by the U.N. radio station. He accused the United States of deliberately blocking a nuclear test ban treaty because Washington wanted to carry out a new series of atmospheric explosions in late April.

Gromyko described as "completely unfounded" Western suspicions that the Soviet Union is responsible for the block because it too wants to conduct another test series. But he said the Russians will carry out new tests if the United States does.

Lawrence Raps Quote By Scranton

HARRISBURG (AP) — Gov. Lawrence said Tuesday a statement on full employment by U.S. Rep. William W. Scranton reminded him of the "chicken in every pot" slogan used by Republicans in the depression of the 1930s.

Scranton, organization candidate for the GOP gubernatorial nomination, said Monday the aim of the Republican party is to provide jobs for everyone.

Asked to comment on the Scranton statement at his weekly news conference, Lawrence said:

"Well, now, Mr. Scranton might think he can do that. He is a little bit new and as I have said before, he is inexperienced."

"And when he makes statements like that, I am beginning to think he is inexperienced. That statement that everybody is going to make money — that sounded about as close to a 'chicken in every pot' and two cars in every garage" as anything I have heard since (former President Herbert) Hoover made the statement."

Lawrence added in reply to a question that he didn't know if full employment could be provided.

"It is a complicated thing. When you sit and analyze it, it gets more complicated."

The governor said some theories are being advanced to combat unemployment. Without advocating any of them, he listed three as a reduction in the work week, greater production and distribution of goods. And finally, "to just make up our minds we are going to have four or five million people on relief and keep them there and pay for it."

Other news conference highlights:

Reapportionment — Lawrence said the Supreme Court decision giving cities authority to challenge rural-dominated legislatures in federal courts "basically is a good thing."

Realignment of legislatures along population lines has been stagnant, Lawrence said, "because when you are reapportioning a legislative body, you are stepping on the toes of the individuals involved."

"It would be much better, the governor added, "if there would be some means by which some outside agency would do it (reapportionment)."

U.S. Would Use N-Weapons To Stop Soviets In Europe

AFTER CRASH IN ALGIERS — Bodies of man and woman lie in the Rue d'Isly, Algiers, as French soldier stands guard over scene of a blood bath in which many were killed and scores wounded. European settlers, answering the call of the secret army, made a defiant march into the center of the city where they ran into bullets and tear gas hurled down from helicopters. Counterman Case Turned Over To Monroe Court

JOHN COUNTERMAN, 22, of 38 Smith St., East Stroudsburg, was continued in $1,000 bail for the next term of Monroe County Court on an assault and battery charge after a hearing before Mrs. Ruth E. Miller, Stroud Township justice of the peace, last night.

Counterman was charged with aggravated assault and battery in a warrant sworn out by Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Edinger Jr., 184 Streamside Ave., East Stroudsburg, and their son, Floyd, III.

The charge resulted from an altercation between Counterman and the Edinger youth, a 13-year-old student at Stroud Union High School, on March 13 at Buck's Soda Shop, near the high school.

Counterman pleaded innocent to the charge at last night's hearing. On the advice of his attorney, Walter Oleick, of Stroudsburg, Counterman did not testify at the hearing.

Atty. Edmund Turtzo, of Bangor represented the Edingers at the hearing.

Counterman was first arrested by Stroudsburg police on the afternoon of the episode at the soda shop. He was charged with assault and battery, which was reduced to disorderly conduct at a hearing before Peace Justice Floyd W. Kellogg, of Stroudsburg. Counterman paid a total of $30 in fine and costs on the latter charge.

Police were quoted after the hearing before Kellogg as saying that witnesses indicated there was no altercation between the two and they were "fooling around" when the boy was hurt.

The police report indicated Edinger was choked until he was unconscious. He suffered a cut under his chin which required five stitches at Monroe County General Hospital.

The warrant, signed by the boy and his parents, was sworn out the day following the hearing before Kellogg.

Mrs. Miller heard four witnesses at last night's session before deciding to hold the case over for court. All testified on behalf of the Edingers.

French Move More Troops Into Algiers

ALGIERS (AP)—Long military convoys rolled into Algiers Tuesday to help French garrison troops and riot police bring the 300,000 European settlers of this strike-crippled capital under control.

Army sources said about 60,000 soldiers — most of them newly freed from field duties by the cease-fire ending the Algerian nationalist rebellion — are being massed in the defiant city.

French armored cars and half-tracks patrolled the streets. It was clear that the supreme commander in Algeria, Gen. Charles Allieret, and French High Commissioner Christian Fouchet are determined to break the back of the European Secret Army Organization and its resistance to Algeria's independence.

Secret army agents told newsmen the shooting Monday which killed 45 Europeans and injured 120 demonstrating for the secret army was "a terrible blow below the belt."

Authorities moved with determination to pave the way for the provisional executive agency envisioned in the Evian peace agreement with the Moslem rebels.

Type III Oral Polio Vaccine Is Licensed

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Public Health Service announced Tuesday the licensing of Type III oral polio vaccine, the last of the series needed for protection against all three types of polio.

Types I and II were licensed last year, but were not recommended for general use because without the Type III vaccine they did not offer complete protection.

The newer vaccines are taken by mouth, rather than being injected by needle as is the Salk vaccine in general use.

Licenses for manufacture of the Type III vaccine were issued to two manufacturers.

Surgeon General Luther L. Terry said the companies are Pfizer, Ltd., Sandwich, England, and Lederle Laboratories, Pearl River N.Y.

Terry also announced the licensing Tuesday for production of Types I and II oral vaccine of the Lederle Laboratories and the Wyeth Laboratories, Philadelphia, Pa.

Pfizer was granted licenses last Aug. 17 for Type I vaccine and last Oct. 10 for Type II.

Terry also announced that Public Health Service recommendations for use of the oral vaccine during 1962 will be made public shortly.

"We now have two effective vaccine weapons to fight this disease. The killed vaccine developed by Dr. Jonas Salk and the live oral vaccine prepared from strains developed by Dr. Albert Sabin," Terry said.

Lenten Meditation

By Rev. Elmer G. Meissner
Tannersville United Church of Christ

"Then Jesus told His disciples, 'If any man would come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross and follow me.'" — Matthew 16:24

Down through the ages challenge of Jesus to "take up the cross" has come to men and women of all nations, classes and kinds. There are, of course, those noble souls who have accepted this challenge as it was intended, but then there are others who are constantly complaining about the "cross" which they must bear. What this latter group fails to realize is that these crosses are for the most part, of their own fashioning, and not the Cross which our Lord intended.

Consider, for example, the cross of worry. At some time or another we have all borne this cross. Down into the depths of our mind we go, and there, out of the things we have heard or imagined, we fashion the thing.

The crosses we make out of worry are never little ones — they are big and heavy, leading to headaches, heartaches and ulcers. They rob us of our joy and peace, and yet we make them and carry them.

If we will but recall that He has led us in the past, and trust Him to continue doing so in the future, we can leave the cross of worry at His Altar and take up the Cross He means for us to carry.

Then, too, there are the crosses of fear. This is an age of fear — the fear of tomorrow, the fear of Communism, the fear of old age. We say to ourselves, "Don't be afraid", but that doesn't rid us of this burdensome cross.

Again, we must rely upon God, realizing that His back is never turned toward us, that we are always in His eye, that He is the ever watchful shepherd who never slumbers nor sleeps. Let us cast these crosses of fear away, and place our hands in His, going forward with calm assurance that all is well.

We make still other crosses for ourselves out of sorrow. Sorrow is an inevitable part of life, and a natural consequence of the loss of a loved one, but how victoriously we can deal with it if, instead of pitying ourselves, we carry it to the heart where all sorrows are and find there the courage to go on.

The Cross our Christ would have us take up is always one we may leave or carry as we wish. We can pass by on the other side, and the world may never know or condemn. But we know — and God — This Cross is the task, the duty which love alone prompts us to carry. No other motivation will suffice. The real secret of the easy yoke and light burden of the Christian life is in looking to Christ daily.

Seeing Him there upon the tree on Golgotha, we are ashamed by the little we carry and the small part we play in the redemption of our time.

White House Report Indicates Such Move

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy made it clear Tuesday that the United States would strike first with nuclear weapons if they were needed to prevent a massive, conventional Soviet attack from overrunning Europe.

A statement issued by White House press secretary Pierre Salinger said that all available means would be used to turn back such an assault.

The statement did not mention use of nuclear arms in these circumstances, but they are a major pillar of U.S. defense and would be embraced in the term "all available means."

The White House comments were prepared to answer an article by Stewart Alsop in the Saturday Evening Post. It quoted the President as saying that in some instances the United States must be prepared to take the initiative in using nuclear weapons and cited an attack on Western Europe as an example.

Based On Interview

Alsop's article, based on a White House interview with the President five or six weeks ago, also attributed these points to the President:

—That America's big postwar edge in air and nuclear power began to fade in 1958 or 1959 with the advent of missiles, bringing a drastic change in the balance of power.

—That Kennedy's strategy is to have sufficient arms flexibility to be able to choose the response to Soviet thrusts, rather than have the choice forced on the nation.

—That two basic nuclear doctrines of the past have been discarded: That anything bigger than a brush fire war would be a nuclear war and that the United States would never strike first with nuclear arms.

Salinger did not specifically verify any of the remarks attributed to Kennedy by Alsop. But he was prepared for questions about the article and read this statement to newsmen:

"The quotation given in the Alsop article must be read in total context. The President's statement represents no change in American policy."

Been Clear

"It has always been clear that in such a contest as a massive, conventional attack on Europe by the Soviet Union, which would put Europe in danger of being overrun, the West would have to prevent such an event by all available means. This has been United States policy since the late 1940s, and it represents no change."

"The real change, as Mr. Alsop points out elsewhere in the article, is in the strengthening of our defensive alternatives to nuclear warfare."

Alsop's article said, "The President's clear determination to risk nuclear war rather than tamely surrender Berlin has saved Berlin so far."

It also quoted the President as saying: "I don't think most Americans realize the way the situation has changed. I don't think many people really understand the change."

"As late as 1954 the balance in air power, in the nuclear weapons, was all on our side. The change began about 1958 or 1959 with the missiles."

"Now we have got to realize that both sides have these annihilating weapons, and that changes the problem."

"Of course in some circumstances we must be prepared to use the nuclear weapon at the start, come what may—a clear attack on Western Europe, for example."

"But what is important is that if you use these weapons you have to control their use. What you need is control, flexibility, a choice."

Will Select New Astronaut Group

WASHINGTON (AP)—Space Administrator James E. Webb said Tuesday he expects to announce within the next few weeks plans for selecting a second group of five to 10 U. S. astronauts for space flights.

Webb said anyone with the right experience could apply for the astronaut jobs, including civilians. But he said he doubted that any women would qualify.

No Exceptions In Sunday Sales

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Mayor James H. J. Tate said Tuesday there will be no exceptions in the city's enforcement of the Pennsylvania blue laws, beginning this Sunday.

"Any store that deals exclusively in merchandise banned by the 1959 law is expected to be closed on Sunday," Tate told a news conference.

"Other counties in Pennsylvania are enforcing the law. There is no reason why we should be an exception."

The law prohibits Sunday sales on a list of commodities, ranging from clothing to novelties and souvenirs.

Referee Cleared In Paret Bout; Ex-Champ Still In Deep Coma

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—The New York Athletic Commission upheld Tuesday the referee's judgment and the medical precautions in the welterweight championship fight which left Benny (Kid) Paret battered almost to death.

The three-man commission, which had been asked by Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller to report on the tragic fight, told the governor: "It is our opinion that all possible medical precaution had been taken prior to the contest and referee (Ruby) Goldstein acted in good judgment in stopping the fight when he did." Paret, who was the welterweight champion, was battered senseless at Madison Square Garden Saturday night by Emile Griffith. Paret still is in a coma, and doctors say that, even if he survives, chances are slim that he ever will regain full control of his body.

Full Report

Rockefeller released the report to the public with the sole comment: "I and my staff are giving full consideration to the report."

The commissioners said Paret was in excellent physical condition for the contest and that the reputation, integrity and ability of referee Goldstein was above reproach.

In a separate report, Goldstein told the commission: "I fully believe that I took the proper action and acted in the best judgment I know how in stopping the fight right then and there. I don't believe anybody had the foresight to expect that Paret would collapse when I terminated the bout."

As for the period in the 12th round when Paret's head was out of the ring, Goldstein said, "From long experience in boxing, I have seen on numerous occasions boxers deliberately putting their heads a little out of the ring and this sometimes can be used as sort of a means of avoiding getting hit cleanly."

Dr. Alexander Schiff, ringside physician in charge, agreed with this version. He said, "There was no indication during the contest that Paret was hurt until the time that the referee stopped the contest and he was knocked out."

Deep Coma

A bulletin from Roosevelt Hospital in New York where Paret underwent a brain operation Sunday to relieve pressure said: "No further operation is contemplated at this time. He is still in a deep coma."

The knockout of Paret, dramatically portrayed in the nation's living rooms through television, brought renewed demands for the curtailment or abolition of prize fighting.

In Washington, Sen. Estes Kefauver, D-Tenn., led the criticism, which also welled up in newspaper editorials across the country. Kefauver said:

"Apparently they let this fight go too long. I have felt for some time that prize fighting ought to be strictly regulated or outlawed. Hoodlums have gotten into it."

In Cuba, the Havana Radio revived boxing in the U.S. as being "run by real gangsters who are interested only in filling their bags with dollars and do not have the least regard for the lives of the fighters."

Have You Turned In Your Easter Seal Contribution Yet?

Local Newspaper Of 1891 Had Different Ideas

By Jim Shafer
Daily Record Reporter

SOMETHING old has a way of catching the eye and attention of almost everyone — age, it seems, does not seem to create a barrier to interest. The aged material which caught our eye was a copy of The Monroe Democrat published on May 29, 1891.

The Monroe Democrat was a newspaper published in Stroudsburg by A.O. Greenwald & Co. It was a weekly paper published on Friday of each week. The subscription rate was $1 a year — paid in advance.

One of the first things the eye glimpsed advertisements on the front page and the "turned rule" (heavy black column lines instead of the fine black line).

The "turned rule", a term used in newspaper work, is the sign of the newspaper acknowledging the death of someone of importance either locally or on the national level.

The death noted in the paper dated May 29, 1891, was that of Amandus Ott Greenwald, one of the publishers of the Monroe Democrat. His obituary required more than one full column of space and was written in the old style of newspaper writing.

Descriptive

One part of the article said, "His disease, diabetes, one that sooner or later proves fatal, was well marked and far advanced before he consulted a physician, and quite quickly to surprise of all, terminated in death. The promise of a year ago was ended, at the age of 50 years, 9 months and 11 days."

Four Pages

The paper was 21 and one-half inches wide and 28 inches long. It contained four pages with local news falling under the headings of "Stroudsburg", "East Stroudsburg", "Bushkill", "Tobyhanna", "Frutcheys Items" and "West Enders", just to name a few.

Today's Daily Record which is 17 and one-half inches wide, 28 inches long publishes no less than 10 pages daily. Both papers were nine columns wide. In comparison there was quite a difference in news content.

Wyckoff & Cooke's New York Store had an advertisement on page two that filled the entire ninth column. They were offering any customer a crayon portrait of themselves or any friend for a trade of $5 or more.

LeBar's Drug Store, formerly Hollinshead's, advertised "A full stock of all kinds of drugs, medicines, chemicals, paints, oils, varnish, glass, putty, perfumery, fancy and toilet articles. All goods sold for cash at honest prices and guaranteed as represented."

The notice also said, "A practical knowledge in writing and compounding prescriptions."

One of the news items under the "West Enders" column was the announcement of the Spoke Factory School closing. It said, "Miss Haney's term having nearly expired. She has ably filled her position as teacher of that school. We understand that exercises, such as recitations, select reading, etc. will be held the last day."

Under the "East Stroudsburg" head was, "Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Smiley who reside on Prospect Ave., celebrated their fifteenth wedding anniversary on Wednesday afternoon of this week. Friends from Kingston, Scranton and this place were present and a real enjoyable time is reported. The presents were numerous and beautiful. A splendid repast was served and after hearty congratulations the party left for their homes wishing Mr. and Mrs. Smiley might live to enjoy many similar evenings."

Pawnee Bill

A small note mentioned the coming of Pawnee Bill's Wild West Show, scheduled in the near future, at the fair grounds and would include "swarms of cowboys, Indians, Mexicans, buffaloes and other animals."

To those in the area who use coal to heat the family house the advertisement placed in the paper by Stroudsburg Passenger Railway Co. would today cause tears to roll down some cheeks. The advertisement said, "Every ton of coal leaving our yard contains 2,240 pounds. The price of a ton of coal varied from $3.75, for Pea coal, to $4.75 for Chestnut coal. The cost per ton at the yard, you come and you carry it home, was $3.35 for Pea and $4.35 for Chestnut coal."

Some of the attorneys practicing at this time, and advertised on the front page, were Charles B. Staples, A. R. Brittain, J. B. Williams, Cicero Gerhart, Wilton A. Erdman and Charles W. Holbrook.

Milliner Shop

There also appeared a short announcement of Mrs. Lizzie Bunnell opening a milliner shop in Stroudsburg.

A news story from Bangor said, "Judge Schuyler at Easton Tuesday afternoon revoked the hotel license of John W. Heller, of Bangor, and directed him to pay the expenses in the case, $200. He also directed Detective Johnson to bring suits against Henry Houser and Samuel Sandt, Heller's bondsmen, for perjury. Last December when they became Heller's bondsmen each swore he was worth $2,000. They swore yesterday they were not property owners then nor since."

It continued, "At the hearing on the rule to show cause why Heller's license should not be revoked several witnesses swore to have been robbed at his hotel."

The Monroe Democrat used for this article was loaned to the Daily Record by Robert Warner, Pocono Lake. The subscriber was Mrs. A. Warner. Her subscription expired Jan. 26, 1892.

Bangor Girls Classes Continue Family Course

BANGOR — "Why Buy Life Insurance?" was the topic discussed by Michael Giaguinto, district manager of the Prudential Life Insurance Company, recently in the Senior Girls' Health Family Living classes.

"Most insurances are if you need it," stated Giaguinto as he concluded the discussion. Giaguinto was assisted in the discussion by Cornell Wallwork, Bangor Agent of the Prudential Insurance Company.

The Girls' Health Family Living Classes also visited Hough's Furniture Store. William Hough, proprietor, conducted the tour of the store.

Highlights of the tour were the important facts relative to materials, trends of furniture, various types of wood popular in this area.

Refrigeration of food, storage space, marking of food, weighing and packaging meats for the consumer's consumption were some of the sights the Family Living Classes viewed when they visited the Atlantic and Pacific Food Store.

Richard Hanna, employer of the A&P was in charge of the tour. A demonstration of weighing and packaging meats was given by Mrs. Helen Heitzman of the Meat Department.

Two ESSC Students Win Scholarships

TWO students from East Stroudsburg State College have won scholarships for a summer of study, travel and fun in French Canada. Joan Hester, Stroudsburg RD 1, and Louise Litzky, Avoca, will pick up their scholarships to study French, June 26, when they will drive to Laval University, Quebec, Canada to study for six weeks.

"We will literally live and breathe and eat French," says Joan, "because part of the idea of the scholarship is that we should board with a French-speaking family off campus."

Louise, who enjoys cooking, especially gourmet foods, is looking forward to their hostess's cuisine. "Real French food — three times a day," she anticipates happily. "I'll probably come back with a notebook of 'new favorite recipes.'"

Sightseeing trips around the province of Quebec, boat rides on the St. Lawrence, and parties with other scholarship students from all over the world are on the summer's agenda for the girls.

Louise is a senior this year at ESSC; at present she is student teaching — French, of course — at East Stroudsburg High School. She will be graduated this Spring and reports that she already has job offers, but, as yet, "haven't made up my mind what I'll do." Joan, a junior, expects to student teach next year at East Stroudsburg High and also at Bangor.

32 Cents Of Cancer Drive Dollar Remains In County

Second In Series

OUT of every dollar collected in Monroe County by the American Cancer Society 32 cents will remain in the county, Richard B. Walters, Monroe County Crusade chairman said last night. The area cancer group will hold its annual drive April 2 through 7th.

Financial support of the American Cancer Society in 1961 reached an all-time high of more than $36 million. The society had its most successful Cancer Crusade, which raised $30,691,805. This is 8.2 percent over the $28,356,630 raised in 1960.

An increasingly important source of income, besides the Crusade, is legacies — in which the society becomes beneficiary of will funds. This rapid growth of income from legacies indicated confidence in the leadership of the society and a determination by many to continue the fight against cancer even after their lives.

In 1961, the society's national headquarters and chartered divisions received $5,342,000 from bequests and legacies.

American Cancer Society funds are allocated in the following manner: Research, 34 percent; Education, 28 percent; Service to the cancer patient, 20 percent; Fund raising, 10 percent, and Administration, 8 percent.

Row Brewing In Scotland

GLASGOW, Scotland (AP)—A first-class row is brewing because the government wants Scots to drink Loch Lomond. Preliminary surveys will start this year to see if the lake can be tapped to serve households and industries in central Scotland.

Tourist organizations and preservation societies already are protesting. They say engineering installations may ruin one of Scotland's most celebrated highland beauty spots.

The preliminary survey, to be paid for by the British government's Scottish Office, will cost $28,000. The government says it is necessary because Scots are demanding water in ever increasing quantities. It promises the lakes scenic attractions will be diminished as little as possible.

Court Allows Names On Ballot

HARRISBURG (AP) — Four candidates for legislative seats won court sanction Tuesday to have their names on the May 15 primary election ballot.

The Commonwealth Court overruled in a seven-page opinion a challenge to the nominating petition of Guerino DiMarcello, Chester Democrat, seeking nomination to the state House of Representatives.

Judge William H. Neely wrote the opinion rejecting the challenge of Anthony DiSimone, also of Chester, who had asked that the petition be set aside because of alleged defects in affidavits and signatures.

The court, in essence, held that the petition would contain an adequate number of valid signatures even if the objections were upheld.

In other court action, Judge Neely allowed amendments to be made to petitions of three Republicans. The petitions had been rejected by the secretary of the commonwealth.

The amendments were allowed on behalf of Glenn E. Thompson, Grand Valley R. D. 1, Warren County, who seeks the senatorial nomination for the 48th District; J. Warren Keel, Philadelphia, a candidate in the 15th legislative district, and William L. Arthur, Fairchance, Fayette County, who seeks the House nomination for the 1st District.

Farms In Monroe County Are Mechanizing Rapidly

AUTOMATION, on farms in Monroe County, is moving forward quickly but swiftly. With much less fanfare than accompanies the progress toward automation in industry, local farmers have been steadily adding to their mechanical equipment.

They have realized for a long time that machinery, rather than

Philly Group To Bring Suit

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Committee of Seventy which frequently acts as a city watchdog group, said yesterday it would bring suit to U. S. District Court unless the legislature redistricts the state of Pennsylvania.

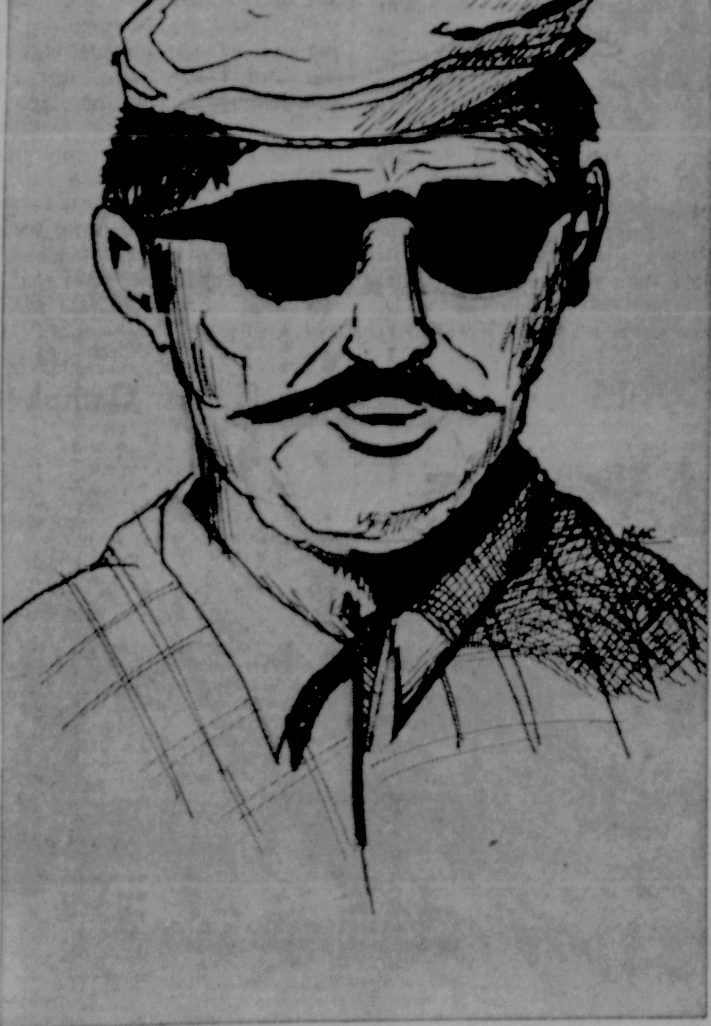

In a statement, The Committee of Seventy took note of Monday's U. S. Supreme Court decision that federal courts may consider complaints from city voters that the present apportionment of legislative seats denies city voters fair representation.

The Pennsylvania Legislature does not meet again until January. If no redistricting is voted during that session The Committee of Seventy said it would take court action.

Pennsylvania's legislature has not been redistricted in many years and cities such as Philadelphia and Pittsburgh complain they do not have representation equivalent to that accorded some rural areas.

Slim Pickings

SOUL, South Korea (AP) — It will be slim pickings for 3,000 South Korean politicians for the next six years. The military junta has banned them for political activity for associations with previous civilian regimes.

horses and hand labor, is the key to better profits. The big obstacle has been the financing of the expensive apparatus.

How well they have been succeeding is brought out in the latest Census of Agriculture, just released.

It shows that there are now some 741 tractors in use on Monroe County farms, including wheel, garden and crawler tractors.

Although such mechanization is taking place in most sections of the country, to a greater degree in some areas than in others, the advance has been more evident locally.

On the basis of the number of farms in the county, there are now 148 tractors owned per 100 farms, well above the 112 per 100 in 1954, when the previous census was taken.

Tops Average
It tops the average in the United States, 138 per 100 farms. Similar advances are noted locally in the number of motor trucks, balers, harvesters and other power equipment in use.

Despite this mechanical revolution, there still appears to be a place for the horse on farms in Monroe County.

The census reports a total of 302 horses and mules locally, as against 301 tabulated five years earlier.

This, however, is quite different from the situation in most parts of the country. Throughout the United States, the number of these work animals on farms has dropped from a peak of 25 million to a mere 3 million in a period of 30 years. In the last five years alone, there was a 28 percent reduction.

The greater productivity on the average farm in the United States, due in great measure to automation, has failed thus far to give the farmer a sufficient return for his labors and his investment. The problem is one that still defies an adequate solution.

150-Plus Students Take Part In PV Poster Contest

MORE than 150 students at Pleasant Valley Schools participated in a poster contest conducted by the Library Fund Committee. The students were from the three curriculums, elementary, junior high and senior high school.

The theme of the program was

"Bucks for Books" in which a drive is currently underway at the school to provide additional books for its new library.

Winners in the contest will be awarded prizes. Miss Mary Jane Everett, school librarian, will present them during National Library Week, April 8-14.

The students, rallying around the committee endeavoring to make the library fund drive a success by May 30, urged contributions to the drive. Each poster submitted for judging depicted as its theme the dire necessity for Pleasant Valley students as they continue through the various educational levels.

Boy Scout Troop 98 circulated the posters in all communities fringing the school area.

Interested persons may contribute to the drive by mailing their donations in care of the postmaster, Brodheadville, William Fisher, treasurer of the fund committee, estimates that the drive is 65 per cent completed as of yesterday.

To further help the drive, a book fair, directed by Mrs. Jane S. Hunsicker, assisted by Mrs. Anne Shafer and Mrs. Marion Mackes will be held in the PV school cafeteria, Saturday April 28. The fair will run from 3 to 8 p.m.

Ask Trial Delay In Tax Evasion

SCRANTON, Pa. (AP)—Counsel for Robert L. Dougherty said Tuesday he would ask for a postponement of the trial because Dougherty Monday suffered a heart attack.

Dougherty is scheduled for court in Lewisburg Monday along with two other northeastern Pennsylvania defendants to face the tax charges.

Dougherty, indicted for alleged evasion of more than $117,000, is reported in improved condition Tuesday at Pittsford Hospital.

Atty. Arthur Maguire, representing Dougherty, and U. S. Atty. Bernard J. Brown, both indicated Tuesday there would be no motions to reschedule the trial. They said Dougherty probably would be tried separately at a later date, if unable to be in court Monday.

Motions for separate trials, one on behalf of Dougherty, were de-

Dollars For Cents

There is a gratifying and growing change in one segment of our economic picture. It is the addition over the last five or six years of millions of dollars to American pay checks—new money that went to people who once were on the deficit side of the ledger, the physically handicapped.

Key to turning these non-producers into happy, willing and productive taxpayers is a word we hear with increasing frequency these days. It is rehabilitation—a multi-faceted work of vocational evaluation and training, care and treatment, education and recreation.

Rehabilitation is practical help for the crippled to aid them in becoming wage earners, independent of their families and tax-supported relief. It is the teaching of skills to replace those lost or non-existent because of handicaps, the building of self-confidence and social adjustment, and the instilling of new hopes and ambitions.

Through these newer avenues of approach pioneered by organizations like the nationwide family of Easter Seal Societies there already is ample evidence and substantial proof that children once classified as "homebound" can usually be made wholly self-supporting when they enter adulthood while others can attain a measure of independence in sheltered workshops.

The full impact of the value of these rehabilitation programs supported by Easter Seal funds is not always obvious. That $1 billion payroll and the percentage of it that goes to federal income taxes is, however, proof in point. Each passing year as more and more of the disabled find practical productive outlets for their skills, the total will mount.

That is all to the good. But complacency, public apathy, sheer indifference can quickly stifle progress and accomplishment. It has happened to many worthy plans. It must not happen to crippled children and handicapped adults who can benefit through rehabilitation. When you are asked to give to Easter Seals, consider it an investment in America as well as in humanity.

So, This Is Geneva!

Dr. Jagan's Delimma

Moscow is getting about as much sugar as it can swallow from Cuba. It is therefore unlikely that British Guiana, a one-crop sugar economy, will receive the development aid it badly needs in barter from Mr. Khrushchev—no matter how candid a Marxist Premier Cheddi Jagan has been.

Dr. Jagan has instead been wooing U. S. investors for the past year. But the funds he has gotten (added to traditional British investment and a World Bank Loan) still fall short of development needs. To bridge the gap Dr. Jagan, again with political candor, demanded more from his taxpayers. His political opponents seized on this ready-made issue, added a few racial overtones, and last month so disrupted the tiny colony that Dr. Jagan had to call in the same British troops that once before had ousted him from office.

There matters stand. But British Guiana is a problem out of proportion to its size. London must decide whether or not to let go of its troublesome colony. Washington must decide whether to risk aiding what might later turn out to be a second Cuba in its back yard, or to risk not aiding it. The Kremlin in turn must decide whether the mischief possible is worth tying up still more precious tankers, disposing of more sugar, and risking later face-losing defeat.

But Dr. Jagan himself confronts the biggest decision. His choice lies between (1) giving added inducements and guarantees to outside investors (thus submerging Marxism under capitalism) or (2) attempting to crack down on his people (thus jumping into the full Communist system of enforcing savings by repression).

The American State Department is no doubt hoping that Dr. Jagan's idealism will triumph over his ideology and that he will choose the former course. Georgetown will be closely watched for portents.

Shareholders And Taxes

President Kennedy desires the United States to accelerate its rate of growth. Under the capitalist system, which is our way of life even with the current modifications, it is not possible for our industry to grow or to replace obsolescent machinery or equipment except by private means. The alternative is a Socialist state.

For many years, Benjamin Javits, the elder brother of the New York State Senator, has been seeking for a method of reducing the problem of the receding confidence of investors in the growth of American industry. I have for many years watched Benjamin Javits' growth from one who believed originally in what I regarded as a fascist approach to the problem of industrial reorganization to one who now takes a strictly capitalistic attitude.

He has organized the "United Shareowners of America, Inc.," which is designed to recognize the capitalist, that is, the person who has invested his surplus possessions in the growth and development of the American economic structure.

The principal goals of the United Shareowners of America are stated to be:

1. Eliminating double taxation on corporate dividends.
2. Taxing corporate earnings at the same rate as individual income.
3. Revamping the presently unclear and contradictory anti-trust laws.
4. Eliminating the unnecessary governmental controls.

That the tax system in the United States defeats the possibility for growth and for active competition in world markets is obvious from the continuing flight of capital, which in reality means the transfer of jobs from the American worker to workers in foreign lands.

Should this trend continue, it could create a crisis from unemployment which is already the principal social problem of our time. The most hateful day of the year for most Americans is April 15, a day of an outrageous impoverishment. It is not only the corporation that suffers, but every person, from the smallest wage earner to the collector of the largest dividends, wonders what he is working for.

Also a moral degradation sets in as the hard-working and honest person discovers that benefits go to the marginal operator, the discoverer of gimmicks, the fellow who manages to get his money over to Switzerland or some such country. For a while, other countries, particularly Panama, competed with Switzerland for this dishonorable tax-haven business, but no place is quite as safe as Switzerland.

It is not envy that is aroused; rather it is wonder that the tax structure is not revised to protect Americans and the method of collecting taxes is not humanized. At present it is so brutal that the decent, honest citizen lives in terror of the tax-collector who has become the most disliked of public officials, although he is quite innocent, for he only obeys a very wicked, unscientific law which benefits the crook and penalizes the loyal and obedient citizen. Benjamin Javits and his group are then performing a useful service by beating the drums for a restudy and a revision of our tax system. Similarly, the so-called anti-trust laws no longer fit our problems. They are antiquated even with such revisions as were made in the Clayton Act and some decisions of the Supreme Court.

The purpose of the anti-trust laws is to protect the American economic system from the perils of monopoly and cartelization. But alien monopoly industries compete with American industries and European cartels operate in this country unhampered.

In fact, the NRA was an attempt during the Roosevelt Administration to organize the entire American industry into a group of cartels and then to associate these cartels with labor unions not unlike the Italian syndicates arranged by Mussolini.

Such a program was first proposed to Herbert Hoover who turned it down as unconstitutional. The NRA is now forgotten and many companies who abided by President Roosevelt's economic assumptions defend themselves in anti-trust suits.

At any rate, this subject requires restudy and an adaptation of it to modern needs and conditions. It is important for the small businessman to continue to exist, for out of his efforts grows big business. It is important to protect industries once started which require success and strength until they are acquired by group-industries.

This brings up the intervening danger of the inheritance tax which is making the family business non-feasible. In a word, there is much to do if the capitalist system is not to be permitted to fail.

Harrisburg—Strange though it may seem, Republicans in shooting for a statewide win at the polls this year, in certain respects are following in the late lamented footsteps of their successful Democratic arch-rivals of four and eight years ago!

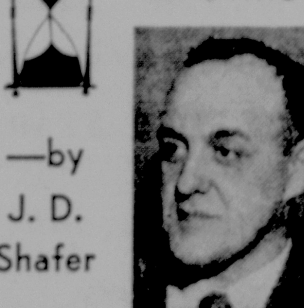

In the current primary campaign this is most noticeable insofar as the "organization" ticket is concerned—but it does offer a portent of things to come in the fall campaign.

Basically, strategy centers around the fact that in Pennsylvania today a lagging economy with its accompanying unemployment again is just about the number one point of interest.

In 1954, it will be recalled, the high level of unemployment in the state at that time became one of the top issues on the then underdog Democratic agenda.

Democratic administration sources on Capitol Hill since then have credited this issue with being one of the major contributing factors in placing Democrat George M. Leader in the gubernatorial chair.

The Pennsylvania Story

Following In Footsteps

Eight years ago the entire onus for the high unemployment level was placed by aspiring Democrats squarely in the lap of the then incumbent Republican administration.

It is with a touch of irony now that the incumbent Democratic Lawrence Administration finds itself faced with a situation of similar nature as that "enjoyed" in 1954.

In actuality, those strategists who call the shots concede that the present Democratic Lawrence Administration is no more responsible for the rate of unemployment this time than the Republican Fine Administration in 1954.

In campaign terms however all of this is beside the point.

The salient fact at the moment is that a Democratic administration is in power at a time when job seekers have been reaching high points—just as they did when the last GOP administration occupied the throne room atop Capitol Hill.

The shoe in campaign year 1962 is on the other foot but Republicans have planned a comparable capitalization strategy, as well they might.

Whether it will work with the success of the Democratic strategy remains to be seen.

There is one major difference between the two. Democrats historically have been classified as the party with the labor label.

Within the span of the past few years insofar as Pennsylvania is concerned at least, this has reached a fine point of definition.

As the so-called "labor party," Democratic leaders have been concerned basically with their counterparts—labor leaders, relying on these kingly to carry the ball with their rank and file.

Republicans on the other hand have been identified as almost anything but a "labor party"—but the leaning this year in a sense is in the other direction. GOP strategists are "cultivating" labor—but not the Democratic-captive leadership.

Republicans are shooting directly beyond labor leaders—to the men and women in the ranks who hold the vote key in the final analysis—the labor rank and file.

This bold move combined with an economic drop-off could well prove to be the undoing of Democratic this year.

About Town

Our Suggestion for the Week: Since the Cuban people were friends and allies of ours for close to 60 years, we wonder if it wouldn't be a great humanitarian deed to send some of our surplus food to them without strings, without money and without purpose except to prevent them from starving.

It would be a typically American thing to do. This column is for it.

Off The Record

By Bob Clark

So often a man lives among us for a number of years and is little known except for periodic newspaper notices of his accomplishments. While they are to-the-point they are so brief officially that information concerning the man behind the man is sketchy. Unless, of course, you were an intimate friend of this person.

Such is the case of the late Richard Harlow, a resident of LaAnna for 50 years. Everyone, it seems, knew Dick but very few were close enough to feel the impact he left on our American way of life.

Fortunately for us, Dr. Lowell S. Ensor, president of Western Maryland College, left in words no other writer has seen fit to pen. The head of the institution where Dick got his shot to fame and glory recently covered Harlow's active life as we perhaps didn't know him.

Ensor's eulogy was offered at Dick's funeral, Feb. 21, 1962 at Baker Chapel, Westminster, Md.

It would be an injustice if we only used part of Ensor's testimonial. Thus, we will present the eulogy in four parts.

We feel, the lesson taught in this message is well worth the time needed to learn about a man who left goals for all of us to try to emulate.

Here is the opening of Ensor's eulogy:

"This afternoon we gather to pay our respect and tribute to one who earned for himself a significant niche in the life of our 20th century. He was a man of many accomplishments and unusual characteristics.

"Most of us here knew him well and loved and honored him for the great person he was. It would be as impossible as it is unnecessary to adequately delineate, in these few minutes, the complete story of a life that was lived to the full over most of these last 72 years. Rather, there are several basic facets that seem to me to stand out in bold relief as we think of Dick Harlow—facets that I shall highlight this afternoon—facets that will cause him to be held in honored memory by the many whose pathways crossed his.

"First, and primarily, he was a football coach—a great football coach. In fact, he was great even among the greatest. A history of the game could not be written without including his name among the masters of the science of football as it has developed during this century. To him it was a science. It is for this reason that in 1954 he was elected to the National Football Hall of Fame, where his name will be enshrined permanently and indelibly among the immortals of this thrilling American sport.

"He was a coach, however, not in any narrow, constricted meaning of that term, but rather in its broadest sense as a teacher, an adviser, a confidant and sometimes almost a father to the men on his teams. In his mind there was a very close connection between the attitudes a man developed on the athletic field, and the attitudes he would carry with him into the great

Washington, March 28 — The mighty second stage of the advanced Saturn, the moon-rocket booster, will be assembled at North American Aviation's Seal Beach, California, plant.

Representative George Miller, D-Calif., chairman of the House Space Committee, has been advised of this decision by J. L. Atwood, president of North American Aviation.

A $300 million contract for this work is now being negotiated with the California firm, according to D. Brainerd Holmes, director of Space Flight for the National Aeronautics & Space Administration, in a report on the moon program.

Holmes' report will be made public soon.

The decision to do the assembly work at the Seal Beach plant was announced by Atwood in a letter to Representative Miller, in part as follows:

"Subsequent to our very constructive discussion concerning the Saturn B-II booster program, there have been many studies and much analytical work to determine the proper location for the final assembly of this stage. I believe all pertinent factors have been considered, and I have just been advised by Mr. James Webb (Director of NASA) that a final decision has been made to carry out the assembly program at the Seal Beach location here in California.

"This is in contrast to the opinion I held during our conversation, which was to the effect that this assembly work might be done in Florida.

"We are, consequently, proceeding with all speed to utilize the Seal Beach location and believe that this will result in a most expeditious manufacture of these booster units."

The second stage of the advanced Saturn is a mighty five-engine rocket with a one-million thrust. It will be used in attempts to land a man on the moon.

NASA is now negotiating a $300 million contract with Boeing Company to produce the first stage of the advanced Saturn at the giant Michoud plant at New Orleans, La.

Hope For Medical Care — There is substantial reason for those increasingly confident statements by President Kennedy that Congress will vote medical care for the aged under social security.

Significant talks are underway with key members of the House Ways and Means Committee on several proposals that could unlock some major doors on this legislation.

If the President agrees to accept these revisions, he will have a good chance of winning at least two more votes in this crucial Congress — thus giving him a 13 to 12 margin instead of the 14 to 11 line-up now against him. Principal sponsors of these backstage changes are Representatives Burr Harrison D-Va., who is quitting Congress this year, and John Watts, D-Ky.

Following is what they are advocating:

Inclusion of a provision requiring six quarters of Social Security payments for eligibility for medical care benefits. This would apply to everyone, including some 13 million already receiving Social Security compensation.

Under the Harrison-Watts plan, the latter could become eligible for medical care by agreeing to a specified deduction for 18 months (six quarters) from their Social Security checks. The amount of this monthly deduction is still to be determined; the figure most favored is $5.

In all instances — those already receiving Social Security benefits and others — eligibility for medical care would be optional.

Under the Administration's measure, those now receiving Social Security benefits would be blanketed into the medical care program. They would not have to make additional payments to become eligible. This would also apply to some 750,000 retired railroad workers.

Another modification favored by Harrison and Watts is Social Security paying all medical costs except the first seven days of hospitalization. After the first week, there would be no limit on the length of hospital or nursing home care. This goes further than the Administration's bill.

The latter has a ceiling of 90 days' hospital and 180 days' nursing home care. It also requires beneficiaries to pay the first $50 or the first nine days of hospitalization.

Speaker John McCormack, Mass., long-time champion of medical care for the aged, is playing a leading role in these significant backstage discussions.

M McCormack and the President have discussed them several times. McCormack also arranged for HEW Secretary Ribicoff to meet with Representatives Harrison and Watts on their proposals.

How Harrison Sees It — Representative Harrison is strongly opposed to "free rides" on medical care for two reasons. That would be financially unsound, and the original Social Security Act did not include benefits for those already 65 years of age. He deems this a highly desirable precedent.

"I am for medical care under social security," the veteran Virginia lawmaker told his Ways and Means Committee colleagues, "because it is a businesslike and equitable method of dealing with this inescapable problem. But I am emphatically against free riders. There is absolutely no reason for that. Everyone receiving Social Security benefits should be required to pay a share of the cost of medical care — if he wants it. If he doesn't, then he won't have to pay."

"If the Administration really wants a medical care program this year, it can be obtained in my opinion by accepting some reasonable modifications. But if the intent is an issue instead of legislation, then all the Administration has to do is stand pat — and get nowhere."

The President already has agreed to a series of important revisions.

Foremost among them is establishing a special Social Security fund from which medical benefits would be paid. This fund would be financed by a one-half of one percent tax on the first $5,200 annual income; one-quarter paid by the employer and the other by the worker. Self-employed would pay the full tax.

Another accepted change would give Social Security beneficiaries the option of government-paid medical care or a specified sum for private medical insurance.

Action Postponed On Reorganizing

HARRISBURG (AP)—The State Executive Board postponed final action Tuesday on a plan to reorganize the Department of Public Instruction.

Gov. Lawrence, board chairman, accepted a motion to table the proposal for further study, agreeing that "it is too much to absorb at one sitting."

Approval is expected, however, within a few weeks.

Dr. Charles H. Boehm, superintendent of public instruction, outlined the reorganization plan which had been recommended last year by the Governor's Committee on Education.

It would reduce the number of deputy secretaries in the department from six to five, but would give one of them jurisdiction over higher education.

Aside from placing more emphasis on higher education, the reorganization proposal mainly concerns internal housekeeping. It would have relatively little effect on the public elementary and secondary school systems.

State Will Stock 6,000 Fish Locally

SOME 6,000 ADDITIONAL fish will be stocked from today through Saturday, state fish warden James F. Hazen reported last night.

Hazen said that by next Saturday some 25,270 fish will have been stocked in almost half the streams in the county. He said that by April 15, about 12,000 more fish will be distributed.

Yesterday, 1,500 brown and 1,500 rainbow were distributed in McMichael's Creek and 500 brook trout were placed in Lake Creek, Saylorsburg.

Today, Hazen reported, 1,800 brown and 1,800 rainbow will be stocked at Tobyhanna Creek and Thursday, 1,450 brook trout are scheduled for middle branch of the Broheads in Canadensis. Some 500 brook are also planned for Goose Pond Run, Canadensis, on Thursday.

About 2,000 fish were placed at Devil's Hole Creek, near Mt. Pocono last Saturday along with 2,500 brown and 2,500 rainbow at the Broheads Creek, north of Stokes Mill up to Analomink.

Hazen said about 5,000 more will be stocked in Broheads Creek south of Stokes Mill in about ten days.

Wayne Plant Jobs Rise 39 To 96

HOW construction of a new plant for a Wayne County industry through public subscription has more than doubled its employment was reported at a meeting of the Wayne Industrial Development Corporation in Honesdale City Hall Monday night.

President Bernard Pope of WIDC reported employment at Wood, Shovel & Tool Co., White Mills, increased from 39 prior to construction of the plant to 96 as of March 15.

The firm, whose employees are all male, manufactures baseball bats and assembles garden tools. While occupying a former structure, it used 122,500 feet of ash timber per month. Now it uses 238,900 feet.

Pope noted that the boost to the economy also is reflected in sale and hauling of timbers. He said 20-year 2 1/2 per cent bond certificates to those who subscribed in excess of $40,000 of construction of the plant will be distributed about April 1.

Efforts to secure reactivation of the Yuba West Transfer Division of the Yuba Consolidated Industries, Inc., were also reported at the session. Yuba, which once employed about 400 men, now has only 12 persons on its payroll.

Pope said efforts also are being continued to obtain a new industry for occupancy of the plant, in the event Yuba, which is in bankruptcy proceedings, takes no positive action.

The WIDC president said a brochure is being prepared showing the advantage of the Wayne County area for industry and residence.

Six Counties Share In Aid

HARRISBURG (AP)—Five counties will share in state aid amounting to $16,262 for operation of nursing homes for the needy disabled. Secretary Ruth Grigg Horning of the Public Welfare Department said Tuesday.

The payments represent care during the month of December. The new program started last Dec. 1. It applies to the permanently and totally disabled between the ages of 18 and 65.

The counties receiving the initial payments are among 35 participating in the program.

The five include: Allegheny, $13,970, for services at the John J. Kane Hospital; Bucks, $326, for the Nesaminy Manor Home; Carbon, $1,491, for the county institution at Weatherly; Lackawanna, $101, for the Blakey Convalescent Home, and Tioga, $274, for the county home at Wellsboro.

It would reduce the number of deputy secretaries in the department from six to five, but would give one of them jurisdiction over higher education.

Aside from placing more emphasis on higher education, the reorganization proposal mainly concerns internal housekeeping. It would have relatively little effect on the public elementary and secondary school systems.

Eastburg Policeman Suspended

PATROLMAN Richard E. Lesh, a member of the East Stroudsburg Police Dept. for more than two years, yesterday was suspended for 15 days on charges of leaving his post without authorization.

Lesh, in rebuttal, said he did not leave his post since he was working on his day off which was Monday for Patrolman Clark Frailey, who was ill.

Lesh said he left police headquarters after he was threatened with suspension by Police Chief Travis Seese for not answering the borough's "red light" method of signaling police.

Lesh also claimed that he had looked at the light, but could not see that it was lighted because of the bright sun.

Seese declined to comment on Lesh's statements pending a hearing on the charge.

Hearing April 3 It will be held before Borough Council at the regular meeting scheduled for next Tuesday, April 3.

Lesh said he felt that he should be suspended at the time of the offense, if any, regardless of whether he was working another man's tour of duty.

"It's a matter of principle as far as I'm concerned," Lesh said.

His suspension came after a meeting yesterday with Seese and Mayor Thomas L. Kistler.

$1,000 Gift Starts Father Durkin Memorial Fund

MRS. Edwin C. Millard of East Stroudsburg and treasurer of the Altar and Rosary Society of St. Matthew's Parish, presented a check for $1,000 to Rt. Rev. Msgr. Thomas J. Cawley, pastor of St. Matthew's as the opening contribution in establishing a Father Durkin Memorial Fund.

The presentation was made Tuesday night at a meeting of the Altar and Rosary Society.

The tribute is to memorialize the late Rev. Harold G. Durkin, former pastor of St. Matthew's who died Friday, Sept. 8, 1961. The fund will be used exclusively to further Catholic education, a spokesman said.

Msgr. Cawley explained that "no solicitation of other contributions to the fund is planned, but they will be accepted from individuals, societies and organizations who wish to express their esteem for Father Durkin."

Father Durkin was moderator of the 500-member Altar and Rosary Society. He was pastor for 18 years at St. Matthew's.

Father Durkin was a priest for 38 years and headed a parish which included St. Luke's Mission, Stroudsburg; Delaware Water Gap, and St. John's Mission, Bushkill in addition to St. Matthew's.

A native of Scranton, Father Durkin succeeded Rev. John T. Butler in 1943. He was spiritual leader for over 500 Catholic families in the area.

During his tenure as pastor, Father Durkin expanded its scope with the addition of new facilities, including two chapels. In 1951, the parish school was doubled in size to increase the number of grade students from 200 to 400. Just prior to his death, he acquired 15 acres of land in Stroud Township with the intentions of constructing a high school.

Another major improvement in the parish under his direction was the erection of a new rectory in 1951 for priests serving the home church and the missions.

Spirit, Sex Money: Topics For Roundtable

The film, "I Do", recently issued by the Family Life Department of the National Council of Churches dealing with education for marriage will be shown on Saturday at the "Marriage Roundtable" sponsored by the Monroe County Ministerium.

The roundtable will be held at the First Presbyterian Church, Stroudsburg from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. The cost of the course will be $1.50 a couple or $1.00 a person, with luncheon included in the fee.

Subjects to be discussed of interest to all young people newly married, engaged or contemplating marriage, will include: "Spiritual Values in Marriage" by Rev. Harold C. Eaton, of the East Stroudsburg, Methodist Church; "Sexual Harmony in Marriage" by Dr. Mary Hunsicker and Mr. Thomas Knepp; "Interpersonal Relations" by Mrs. Robert P. Mekeel, of the East Stroudsburg State College; "Money and Budgeting" by Mr. J.L. Cohen, C.P.A. Rev. John A. Bollier will serve as coordinator of the program.

It is the aim of the "Marriage Roundtable" to give accurate information to the young people who come, through frank and open discussion in a group setting. The leaders are encouraged to be flexible in their presentation of material because there are so many variables in marriage and because it is impossible to predict the trend of the discussions. The discussion leaders will attempt to encourage good attitudes, open-mindedness, free communication, selflessness between the marriage partners.

Young people are urged to take advantage of this unusual opportunity to strengthen their marriage and knowledge of family living. Reservations may be phoned in to Mrs. Peter Wyckoff, Ha 1-6902 or Mrs. Robert R. Hellmann, HA 1-3360, who are serving as secretaries for the course.

Laurel Scouts Musical Combo Fools Student

Newfoundland — The strains of "Jolly Old Saint Nicholas" wafted along on the breeze from its origin in the cafeteria of Southern Wayne Joint School, as the eleven-piece Laurel Girl Scout Troop 253 Band wound up its Winter badge program in musicianship.

The quality of the music was so good that a member of the regular school band, walking past the school, was suddenly struck by the feeling that he had missed a band practice. He ran home, got his instrument, ran back to the school, and burst in the door, profusely apologizing for his tardiness.

The girl scouts thoroughly enjoyed the compliment!

Melissa Burdick and Nancy Krieger played the flute; Joyce McLain, piccolo; Ruth Ann Schoenagel, Kathy Smith and Connie Keiter, clarinets; Nancy Haldeman, drums; Elaine Hinton, saxophone; Sharon Haag, trumpet; Joan Webster, violin; and Nancy Krieger, Kathy Smith and Melissa Burdick, piano.

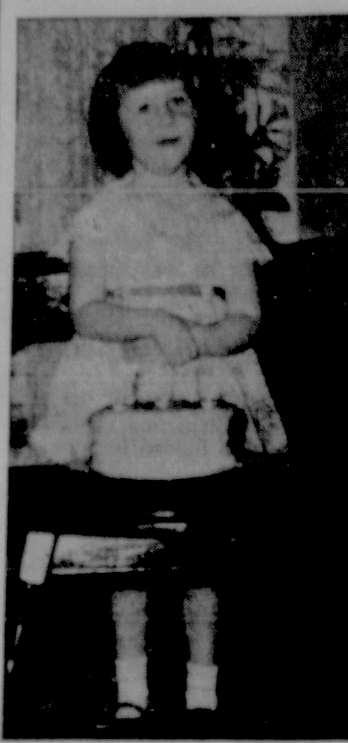

Other badge work being completed to make way for the Spring badge program includes the cat and dog badge, directed by Mrs. Pauline Gilpin; cook badge, Mrs. Thelma Peet; interior decorator badge, Mrs. Ethel Wohlfart.

In the new badge program, Mrs. Peet will be in charge of work for the first class rank; Mrs. Gilpin, second class rank and cat dog badge; Mrs. Mildred Webster, My Troop badge; and Mrs. Peet, individual badges.

Margie Gearhart and Connie Keiter will begin work for the Curved Bar.

Plans for meeting once a month during the Summer were discussed.

A special meeting of parents of brownies, intermediates and planner scout-aged girls is planned with personnel of the Scranton-Pocono Girl Scout Council, and the date of the meeting will be announced.

well. When your hair is long, it gives you security. You just shake your hair to cover your face, if you want to. You can flirt better with long hair when it dangles around you. But when you date a college boy, you must look impressive. I look at pictures of glamorous types until I find a hair style I like. I set it and hope it turns out that way."

Beauty parlor visits require strenuous effort on the part of teen-agers Michel says, so they avoid it. He has a group of girls who visit him about once a month for a hair cut and set. They let him style their hair on the first visit, but after that they style their own, he says.

One girl who has acquired eye-glasses told him she thought it would be an inspiration to have a new hair style as her old hairdo made her head look squashed when she wears the glasses. She plans to thin her bangs and put her hair behind her ears.

Hair bleaching a la teen-ager is described by Michel as "some dabs of cotton soaked in peroxide on the hair and a session in the sun." This bleaching method often results in yellow and orange streaks, dry hair, broken and damaged hair. He doesn't approve of teen-agers bleaching or dyeing the hair.

From Michel's inquiries into the hair habits of teen-agers, he learned how a hair fad sweeps the campus.

"There are always popular girls in school," one 17-year-old girl told him, "and they are always dreaming up new hairdos. We watch to see how successful they are with the hairdo. If it clicks, we all get it."

THE WYCKOFF SHOPPER

These are busy days . . . and, as our Wyckoff ads have been telling you, there's something BIG in the air at Wyckoff's. Our anniversary. The store that Amzi built is 87 in '62, and everyone has cause for jubilation . . . not just those who work at Wyckoff's and who enjoy the many benefits offered Wyckoff employees, but also the customers who will benefit generously from all the specials we are offering during our tremendous ten-day birthday celebration.

I remember the store Amzi built from my very early days as a shopper . . . the days when I came in with my Mother, and when such friendly faces as those of Oscar Geissinger, Selma Ruster, and Mary Rowe beamed at me from over the counters of the fabric, stationery, and pattern departments. I always loved coming into Wyckoff's . . . there were so many pleasant people everywhere, and so many things to see.

As a youngster I quaked in my boots at sight of the Mr. Wyckoff who is now our store Papa. I cannot remember his father, who was the Amzi under whom the little family store (begun as a covered wagon) had flourished so brilliantly. But I do recall Miss Anna Wyckoff whom I once had the privilege of interviewing when I was a daily reporter for our local newspaper. She was a woman with quite a sense of humor . . . one of the family who had worked hard laying a good, solid foundation of friendliness and community service in this store of Amzi's.

The awesome Mr. Wyckoff, whom I now call "Papa," had given us space in his store for a weekly sewing class when I was a little girl . . . and if I recall correctly it was set up in the heart of the needlework department which, at that time, was just under the mezzanine—around in that place where books and magazines are now sold. There I learned to embroider under the kindly eye of Sue Van Why . . . and, if memory serves, Laura Fabel, who was a Girl Scout leader at that time, also helped keep our mind on our stitching.

Through the years, it was rather difficult to keep on track of the Wyckoff departments. They were growing . . . and as they grew they moved here, there, and all over the store. One thing I realized at a very young age was that Amzi's store was on the move . . . no moss was allowed to grow upon its sills. When something new came along, you always found it first . . . in Amzi's store.

My best coats and hats came from Wyckoff's . . . and Maudie Walton was always there to keep me in line and see that the hat I chose was not too old for me, just as Eva Edson was on hand to see that the shoulder seams of my dresses came where they should, and that I didn't adopt whims that were too sophisticated. I often listened to Eva and Maudie when I would probably not have listened to my Mother. And come to think of it, I'm still listening to them . . . and—when they aren't here—to Kate Mullins and Marie Bean.

When I acquired the courage to buy my first lipstick—a purchase Mother put off as long as possible—I bought it from the store that Amzi built, with Millie Von Broock guiding my selection. I wanted a deep scarlet, as I recall, that would have done justice to Mary Magdalene in her early days. Millie steered me to a shade more desirable for a teen ager. My first "heels" came from Wyckoff's . . . my first (and only) fur coat, at a time I. J. Fox paid the store periodic visits . . . my first rayon stockings. And when I was a reporter on the local newspaper, which was then owned by the late Nelson Frantz, my orders were, "Give Wyckoff's anything they ask . . . they're our biggest advertiser and don't ever forget it."

The kitchen table for my first home . . . the first layette for my own family . . . the basinet—all came from Wyckoff's, but little did I dream I'd some day be writing a column and doing a radio program for Amzi's store. Wyckoff's has certainly played a very important part in my life. And I'll wager this . . . YOU can truthfully say the same if you too are a native of our county.

Hair Styles Put Spring On Top

By VIVIAN BROWN

AP Newsfeatures Writer

Hairdressers, please note: Teen-agers will continue to set their own hair styles in 1962. And they'll cut it and bleach it too, thank you.

That's a prediction from hairdresser Michel Kazan who occasionally gets to put a pin curl in the crowning glory of the younger set.

The girls will wear their hair in casual style, not coiffed, use home permanent waves and streak their hair when they feel like it. It's enough to make a hairdresser blow his top.

"I can understand that they want to use home permanent waves, but they should read directions," explains Michel. "It's difficult to get a point over to a teen-ager though; they think they know everything. The result of a home permanent can be damaged hair when they make up their own methods."

Their method of cutting hair is primitive, he says.

"They snip and chop, ruining the hair as they go. Hair should be cut in a proper way to maintain the beauty of the hair, otherwise the natural body of the hair is lost."

Michel has asked a few girls why they wear long, stringy hairdos, avoiding anything that looks fashionable, but he doesn't dig the answers he's been getting. One girl replied to his question: "I object to being fashionable because it is too difficult to look on the cheeks. The unadorned brow is another new feature."

THREE OF THE NEW SHAPES and looks teens may be sporting when tresses come up for spring revisions. Top, "MERRY, MERRY," a happytime hairdo by Andre Anouge. Very short hair is sideswept to fan out into jagged ends on the right; with smooth, close ear-revealing line on left. Lower left, "JOLLY" by R. Keith, takes to any and all campus doings. The smooth hair drapes outward and downward at the sides, and turns under all around. Gossamer wisps trail across the forehead. "FROM QUEEN" by Frederic Jones is sure-fire glamour on all counts. Here the new crown height takes the form of lovely waves, and there is a modified lift at top-front, temple-covering waves at sides, smoothness below and in back, and fragile curls

The Daily Investor

By William A. Doyle

Q. Recently I purchased stock in a rather small company. It is a good company, which has done very well. It has increased its earnings and its dividend payments very nicely in the last couple of years.

But this stock is traded only on the Detroit Stock Exchange. It is not listed on either of the big stock exchanges in New York City. As a result, the price of this stock is not quoted in many newspapers. I feel that the company does not get much publicity. Don't you agree that the stock would do much better, if it were listed on either the New York Stock Exchange or the American Stock Exchange?

A. Maybe. There's a lot of evidence to back up your point of view. As a matter of fact, both the New York Stock Exchange and the American Stock Exchange have published booklets outlining the "advantages" to a company whose stock is listed on either of those, the nation's two largest stock exchanges.

They both make the point you cite, as well as other points.

However, these are things that can't really be proved. There are many arguments for listing a stock on a major stock exchange and other arguments against such a listing. The stocks of many big companies (including most big banks and insurance companies) are not listed on any stock exchange. Those stocks are traded exclusively in the over-the-counter market.

And don't rap the "regional" stock exchange, such as the Detroit Stock Exchange. This and other regional stock exchanges do a good job and make excellent markets for the trading of securities.

Very often a stock will be listed on a regional stock exchange and later will be listed on one of the larger exchanges.

Q. Why is the space allotted to the reading of the ticker tape on the wall of a brokerage office so short in length? I like to follow the prices of quite a few stocks. I barely have time to write down the prices of two or three stocks and they slide off the wall to eternity.

A. First we had better explain just what you are talking about. When there is a transaction on the floor of a stock exchange, that transaction is reported almost immediately on a nationwide ticker tape network.

Ticker machines in brokerage offices and other locations print the name of the stock, the number of shares and the price involved in the transaction on a long, thin roll of paper—know as the tape. This is all done by using abbreviations and numbers. You have to be somewhat of an expert to "read the tape."

Many brokerage offices, in addition to having ticker tape printing machines, also have setups through which printed information on the tape is projected on a rather large screen, much the same as a motion-picture screen.

This reader is unhappy because he feels that screen is too small. About the only advice I can offer is to ask your broker to let you look at actual paper tape, as it comes out of the ticker machine. If you are a good customer, the broker will probably say yes.

But, if you're just sitting in the brokerage office taking up space (as many people do) you'll probably be invited to do your tape-watching elsewhere.

ESSC-N. Y. Titans Will Sign Grid Camp Contract Today

By Curt Prins
Sports Editor

EAST STROUDSBURG State College and the New York Titans sign a formal contract in New York today for the professional football team to use ESSC as a pre-season training camp.

The signing of the one-year agreement will take place at 11 a. m. at the Chatham Hotel, College president Dr. Le Roy Koehler, Frank Silis, director of health and physical education and athletic director John Eiler will represent the college at the signing. Titan president Harry Wismer will sign for his club. The signing ends negotiations that began almost a year ago. The Titans expressed an interest in East Stroudsburg last year but did not follow up preliminary studies. Last year the Titans trained at Bear Mountain in New York. However, Wismer was not satisfied with Bear Mountain and when Clyde (Bulldog) Turner replaced Sammy Baugh as Titan head coach after last season, Wismer asked the new coach to recheck

East Stroudsburg. Snow caused delay. Turner and assistant coach George Sauer made two trips to East Stroudsburg. The first trip was dimmed somewhat because the school's athletic fields were covered with snow and their condition could not be checked by Turner.

However, the Titans returned last week and viewed the snowless fields and quickly approved them.

Between visits, the college's board of trustees approved the use of the college facilities by the Titans.

Dr. Koehler said he is very pleased that the Titans will be based at East Stroudsburg. He added that he hoped it would be a long term arrangement. Dr. Koehler said that unless the summer school session at East Stroudsburg becomes too large, the Titans would be able to use the college as long as possible.

"Our first requirement is to our students," said Dr. Koehler, "but because of the small size of our summer program, we can also take care of the Titans."

Dr. Koehler doubts that the summer program will ever become large enough to dislodge the Titans. He explained that many of the students find resort jobs in the area during the summer and pass up summer school.

East Stroudsburg won't be the first state college to house a pro grid team. Two years ago Slippery Rock was the training site for the Pittsburgh Steelers and last year the Steelers trained at California State.

Both schools' dining halls were operated by the state, which meant they had to order their food well in advance and could not meet the demands of the pro team. However, the ESSC dining facility is run by Woods Catering Service, which does not order its food through the state.

Players Will Quit Squad If "Handshaker" Is Named

DENVER (AP) — A 33-year-old alumni secretary, William E. Fetz Jr., a Lamar newspaper publisher, dissenting.

President Quinn Newton of the university said Davis asked for a day or two to consider the job which he didn't apply for.

Leaders of the football squad threatened to quit in mass, calling Davis, a one-time high school football coach, a handshaker unqualified for the job.

The school's regents voted 5 to 1 to offer Davis the job, Fred M. Fetz Jr., a Lamar newspaper publisher, dissenting.

President Quinn Newton of the university said Davis asked for a day or two to consider the job which he didn't apply for.

Wanted Assistant
The players wanted Bob Ghilotti, end coach under Grandelius or Chuck Boerio, line coach named as mentor.

Prof. Storm Bull, head of the Faculty Committee on Athletics, said Davis was recommended over Ghilotti because "recent evidence indicates he—Ghilotti—had not fully disclosed his involvement (in recruiting practices) to the committee."

No salary terms of the job offer were disclosed, but an aide to Newton said there undoubtedly would be an upward adjustment in Davis' $9,200-a-year salary. Grandelius was hired as gridiron coach in 1959 at $14,000 a year and later was raised to $15,000.

The regents voted to offer Davis a one-year contract.

President Newton, in a talk with reporters after the meeting, said 18 or 20 members of the football squad were named in allegations made by the National Collegiate Athletic Association of illegal practices. The university has admitted most of the charges, which never have been disclosed in detail.

The NCAA council is scheduled to take up charges against Colorado at New Orleans April 26.

Yanks Edge Mets

Cards Win Ninth Straight With Assist From 3 Balks

Cashing in on some unusual breaks and choking off a last inning rally, the St. Louis Cardinals won another close one Tuesday for their ninth straight exhibition season victory. They edged the Pittsburgh Pirates 8-7.

Behind 4-1 in the fifth, the Cards drew even with the help of three balks called on Pittsburgh left-hander Bob Veale for improper pickoff plays to first base. They added three more in the sixth, another in the seventh, and had the decision nailed down when Leroy Gregory stopped a Pirate uprising in the ninth after they had scored three times.

Pittsburgh Manager Danny Mautrigh was thumbed out of the game in the fifth in a rhabarb over the balk calls.

Other Games:
In other games: Houston beat San Francisco 11-4; the New York Yankees beat their new intra-city rivals, the Mets, 3-2; Cincinnati broke a three-game losing slump, 6-3 over Minnesota; the Chicago White Sox downed Milwaukee 3-1; Los Angeles Dodgers hung on for a 6-4 decision over Philadelphia; Baltimore won their sixth in the last seven starts, trimming Kansas City 5-2; Detroit clubbed

Washington 4-1, and the Chicago Cubs pounded Cleveland 12-3, with Jack Curtis going all the way on an eight-hitter against the Indians. Roman Mejias and Hal Smith hit a pair of homers for the Colts. Elston Howard's bad-hop single in the eighth inning set up the winning run for the Yankees as they nicked the Mets.

Strong pitching by Jim O'Toole, Dave Hillman and Bob Miller led the Reds over the Twins. O'Toole was touched for four hits and three runs in the opening inning but retired the next 15 men in order before retiring with a hand blister.

The White Sox dealt the Braves their 12th loss in 16 exhibitions behind the pitching of Ray Hebert and Joel Horlen.

Six Hitless Frames
Stan Williams worked seven impressive innings for the Dodgers, holding the Phils hitless through the first six.

Billy Hoelt gave up only two singles in a seven-inning stint for the Orioles, who scored their five runs off Norm Bass.

Detroit batters unloaded against Washington, with a homer, triple and double by Steve Boros, three more hits by Purnell Goddy, and a three-run homer by Al Kaline.

George Witt, Dean Chance and Jack Spring of the Angels doled out only five singles to the Red Sox, who also had trouble in the field with a costly error and a misjudged fly.

Lou Brock and Ken Hubbs gave Curtis heavy support against Cleveland. Brock, batting .471 for the spring, drove in three runs with a homer and single while Hubbs smacked two homers.

Lakers' Center Son Found Dead

LOS ANGELES (AP) — James O'Kelly Krebs, 6-month-old son of Jim Krebs of the Los Angeles Lakers, was found dead in his crib Tuesday.

The father booked a flight home from Detroit, where the Lakers were slated to play the Pistons in a National Basketball League playoff game Tuesday night.

The cause of the baby's death was not immediately known.

Kefauver Hints Fist Crackdown

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Estes Kefauver, D-Tenn., said Tuesday the critical injury of Benny (Kid) Paret in New York City last Saturday night may force tighter legal restrictions on professional boxing or its elimination.

"Apparently they let this fight go too long," Kefauver said in an interview. "I have felt for some time that prize fighting ought to be strictly regulated or outlawed. Hoodlums have gotten into it."

Varsity 'S' Plans Junior Hoop League

THE VARSITY "S" Club of Stroudsburg, which organized a junior football program last fall, is moving into a basketball program.

The club will sponsor a summer basketball program for boys in the Stroud Union school system.

The program will include two nights of instruction and a night for team competition. The teams will be divided into senior and junior leagues.

Hank Slider of Allentown, former pro basketball player will run clinics on Tuesday and Friday nights ground. The playground courts will be lighted this year. The first clinic will be held June 13 and will continue for 11 weeks.

Varsity "S" appointed coaches will attend all clinics and will carry on the program during the school year.

Because of the new junior athletic programs the Varsity "S" is undertaking, the club is interested in building its membership. The club meets the third Thursday of each month at the Stroudsburg Firehouse.

Bill Schoonover, commissioner of the club's junior football program, says that team football pictures are now available at Lawrence Studios.

Dear Abby

Father - - And 'Mother'!

Dear Abby: My father is a den mother. My mother said she would be our den mother but my father has had to run most of the meetings because my mother never gets home in time. My father works the night shift so he is home when I get home from school. All the kids like my Dad and he makes a very good den mother, but some of the kids make fun of me. How can I get my mother to be the den mother she promised to be?

JIMMY

Dear Abby: How can you tell a mother her faults? She complains that she is "lonely," but she brings so much of it on herself with her fussy ways. She is a nut on housekeeping. When she's expecting guests for dinner, she even cleans out her garage!

Even worse, regardless of whose house she's in, she scours "spots" from the stove, bleaches the sink, and scrubs around the faucets. She thinks she's being helpful when she "rearranges" your cupboards, not realizing she makes you feel like a poor housekeeper. She points out little things like, "The children's shoes need washing," and "Your towels look faded." We love Mom, but we (her married daughters) are nervous wrecks after each visit. Print this, Abby. It might help.

Dear Exhausted: Your mother's "fussiness" is probably due to an excess of nervous energy. You'll never change her, so learn to roll with the punches. Go about your business and let her scour, scrub and "rearrange." She loves it!

Dear Abby: My husband's hair is thin and he says his ears get cold at night. He wants to wear a night cap and I don't like the idea. Do men wear them now or not?

MARRIED 44 YEARS

Dear Married: Night caps are still very popular (both to drink and to wear) and I am told they still sell quite a few.

Confidential To B. J.: No one would think of holding a delicious pneumonia patient responsible for his actions. Why should a manic depressive be blamed for what he does because his illness has lodged in his mind instead of his lungs?

Stop worrying. Let Abby help you with that problem. For a personal reply, enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

JIMMY

Dear Abby: How can you tell a mother her faults? She complains that she is "lonely," but she brings so much of it on herself with her fussy ways. She is a nut on housekeeping. When she's expecting guests for dinner, she even cleans out her garage!

Even worse, regardless of whose house she's in, she scours "spots" from the stove, bleaches the sink, and scrubs around the faucets. She thinks she's being helpful when she "rearranges" your cupboards, not realizing she makes you feel like a poor housekeeper. She points out little things like, "The children's shoes need washing," and "Your towels look faded." We love Mom, but we (her married daughters) are nervous wrecks after each visit. Print this, Abby. It might help.

Dear Exhausted: Your mother's "fussiness" is probably due to an excess of nervous energy. You'll never change her, so learn to roll with the punches. Go about your business and let her scour, scrub and "rearrange." She loves it!

Dear Abby: My husband's hair is thin and he says his ears get cold at night. He wants to wear a night cap and I don't like the idea. Do men wear them now or not?

MARRIED 44 YEARS

Dear Married: Night caps are still very popular (both to drink and to wear) and I am told they still sell quite a few.

Confidential To B. J.: No one would think of holding a delicious pneumonia patient responsible for his actions. Why should a manic depressive be blamed for what he does because his illness has lodged in his mind instead of his lungs?

Stop worrying. Let Abby help you with that problem. For a personal reply, enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Find Body Of Coal President

LIGONIER, Pa. (AP) — The body of a coal company president was recovered from a nearby creek yesterday after a half mile downstream from where his wrecked auto was found last week.

The body of Jay C. Jamison Jr., 48, of Greensburg, was found by firemen near the Kingston Dam on the Loyalhanna Creek. He was president of the South Union Coal Co.

Firemen had been searching for the body almost continuously during daylight hours since Jamison's car was found on its roof in the creek last Tuesday night.
